The two-day Festival at the start of September of this year will be a showcase of modern eventing with part of the funds generated being used to sponsor a studio for up and coming artists in Africa. The event will also take the environment into consideration by providing various recycling options throughout the site and requiring all suppliers to comply with high environmental standards.

Situated on Streatham Common in South London's Borough of Lambeth the event is intended to include as many local businesses and people in the Borough as possible in the staging of this exciting new addition to London and the UK's summer festival calendar.
